WHAT LONGSTREET THOUGHT OF LEADERS

Sharp Criticism of Confederate Captains. Lavis Caused Said

built "The Grove," another famous mansion, near Williamsburg, and had Colonel Nathaniel (5), who went to Clarke county, built the splendid mansion, "Carter Hall," and is the ancession, "Carter Hall," and is the ancestor of the Clarke Burwells; Elizabeth (4), who married William Wilson, and is the ancestress of the majority of the Nelsons, and Robert Carter (4), who removed to Isle of Wight and established that branch "Burwells, Lewis (4), the elder son, married Mary Willis, and had Lewis (5), Anne (5), who married Lightfoot, and Rebecca (5), who married Jacquiin Ambler.

Since the destruction by fire of the Carter's Creek masion some years ago

And the addition of the cates of the desired of the cates of the cate of the cates of the cates of the cates of the cates of the cate of the cates of the cates of the cates of the cates of the cate of the cates of the cates of the cates of the cates of the cate of t

Defeat. (From the Washington Post, June, McClellan instinctively overestimated

well who owned "White Marsh." His son, Nathaniel (6), might have owned it, but this is not plain. The family was getting poor in Gloucester.

This is not a Burwell genealogy, but merely a genealogical preface to the graveyard has been merely a genealogical preface to the remains of the family the remains of the family same to the family sa

The Times Dispatch 49 GENEALOGICAL COLUMN